Mira and the Raincloud Garden

A little courage helps a garden grow

Picture Story

Mira found a shy silver cloud above her thirsty garden. It could only manage a few tiny drops.

The marigolds still drooped. The little cloud wanted to help, but it worried about making a bigger shower.

Mira showed how gently her watering can worked.
Together, they could give every thirsty plant a drink.

The little cloud grew braver. Its drops became a gentle shower, while Mira smiled and helped below.

Soon, the garden began to change. With water and care, the marigolds lifted their leaves and bloomed bright orange.

The happy cloud rested above the blooming garden. Mira learned that a little encouragement could help wonderful things grow.
